Biography

James Valentino is a versatile attorney who litigates complex, high-stakes criminal and civil matters, advises businesses on a broad range of employment issues and represents senior employees in negotiations regarding terms of employment, compensation and severance packages.

James's employment practice involves representing officers, directors, partners, executives and other senior level employees in contract and severance negotiations. James also advises companies on compliance with local, state and federal employment and labor laws and drafts various employment contracts and policies. He also engages in litigation and dispute resolution on behalf of individuals and companies involving a wide range of claims including: discrimination and retaliation, failure to pay bonuses, commissions and wages, breach of contract and breach of non-competition, non-solicitation and confidentiality agreements. His employment work spans across a multitude of industries including hospitality, banking and finance, private equity and start-ups, health care, advertising and sales, fashion, media, entertainment, and sports.

James is also an experienced civil litigator. Although James has proven successful on many occasions in helping his has spent more than half of his career handling matters ranging from business disputes to violations of civil rights. He represents individuals and businesses in civil litigations in state and federal courts and in arbitrations before FINRA, AAA, and JAMS.

As a former senior prosecutor in Kings County, James understands each criminal matter he litigates from the perspective of both law enforcement and the defense. He has handled over a thousand cases as either a prosecutor or defense attorney, tried numerous cases to verdict as lead counsel and conducted pre-trial and post-conviction hearings. James defends individuals facing a wide variety of federal and state criminal charges including fraud, tax evasion, larceny, forgery, assault, driving while intoxicated, sale and possession of narcotics, weapons possession, homicide, and sex offenses.

Prior to joining Clayman Rosenberg Kirshner & Linder LLP, James had his own law practice based in New York City. Before that, James was a Senior Assistant District Attorney in Kings County and worked at two New York law firms: Cahill, Gordon & Reindel, LLP and Harris, St. Laurent, LLP.
